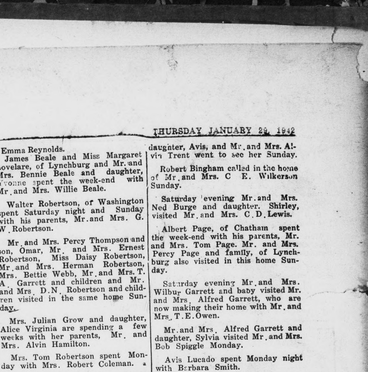
• FIRST AID FOR INFLUENZA •



Courtesy Tile and Till—First Drug Store 1752.

Oldest drugstore in the U. S. Founded 17 years before the Revolution.

IN 1735 Bach was a middle-aged man. Handel an infant of three, George III not yet born. But that year will be remembered by none of these because there came an event of far more importance to us —the first recognized epidemic of influenza.

Others came in 1789 and 1803 and 1889. Of course influenza is always with us, but not in epidemic form when its killing power can be reckoned by the millions of victims. And within the memory of many now living came the epidemic of 1918-19 probably the most devastating in the history of this scourge. A statistician of one of our life insurance companies estimated that ten million people died of influenza then.

No country was immune and no really effective measures were known then. Now they are, largely because of observations made on some troops in southeastern Europe who were being treated for malaria. These, of course, were regularly dosed with quinine for their malaria. But a surprising thing happened. It was soon observed that with influenza raging all around them, these malaria sufferers seemed to be immune to it.

Some army doctors began wondering whether there could be any connection with the malaria dosage of quinine and freedom from influenza. Soon after the war many doctors began experimenting with influenza patients and quinine. It was, after all, not difficult, and they soon became convinced that small doses of quinine were of value not only as a cure of influenza but in preventing most of it.

There were, of course, doubters and there still are some. They want to know how quinine or any other drug can act against the mysterious virus that causes the disease. Most practical physicians suggested leaving this to the experts and in the meantime go on using quinine, which is empirically the doctor's job, because the disease is so easily followed by pneumonia. But any layman can take five grains of quinine from November to March. And there is medical evidence that by so doing he may keep himself free from influenza. The drug is in every drug store, and all the experts agree that we are in for an influenza epidemic this winter. ●

Senator Byrd Demands Truth On War Effort

Richmond, Feb. 3.- (By VPA)- Speaking before a point session of the General Assembly of Virginia, convened in the restored Colonial Capitol at Williamsburg on January 31, United States Senator Harry Byrd asked that America be told "the whole truth" about its 1942 war effort.

"Of this I am convinced," Virginia's junior Senator said, "only an informed and aroused democracy, can win through to victory." Senator Byrd also stated that he would if he could, adopt the following slogan for the unification of the United States: "Excluding information of value to the enemy, the American people should know, in this grave emergency, the whole truth, fully and progressively, so that by united action and universal sacrifices we can meet our perils and perform the colossal obligations we have undertaken."

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear wife and mother, Edna W. Baldwin, who died February 2, 1933, 9 years ago today.

In the graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies one we loved so truly,
And wished so much to save.

The days are long,
And nights are dreary,
And time rolls slowly on;
How hard it is to realize
That forever you are gone.
Earth has lost its look of gladness,
The shadows over our lives has cast.

For life without dear Edna
Is not the safe as in the past.
We grieve for you in silence,
After God only sees us weep.
But many tears we shed,
While others are asleep.
What would we give to
Grasp you to our breast,
Your precious face to see;
To hear your voice and see your smile,
Would mean the world to us.
Forget you, we could never,
It is vain for us to try;
We'll think of you forever,
And love you 'till we die.
—Husband and Daughter.

War-Saving Time Goes Into Effect Monday At 2 A. M.; School Schedule Announced

"War-Saving Time" will go into effect next Monday, February 9, at 2 A. M. by act of Congress, signed by the President, and by proclamation of the Governor of Virginia, clocks will be moved up one hour, "for the duration" or until further notice.

School Hours In County

The Appomattox county school board met yesterday and made the following announcement concerning time for the opening and closing of public schools—

Beginning Monday morning, the schools will open and close one hour later than at present, and continue on that time until March 9.

From March 9 until April 1, the schools will open and close one-half hour later than at present.

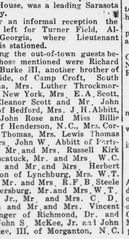
After April 1, schools will open and close at the present hours.

Under this staggered arrangement the schools will render convenience to bus pupils and gradually work up to War-Saving Time as the days get longer.

Last year when daylight saving time was tried in Virginia, the U. S. mails, trains and buses continued on Eastern Standard Time, causing some confusion. Some families did not move up their clocks. However War-Saving Time is a Federal matter now, and everybody will be on it.

Remember— when you retire Sunday night, move your clock up one hour, and from then on you will be on WAR-SAVING TIME!

HOUSE — BURKE



The wedding of Miss Jane Hallowell Burke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Allen Burke, and Lieutenant Jack Puryear House, son of Mrs. Edwin Winston Sudduth, of Sarasota, Florida, took place Saturday afternoon at four o'clock at the home of the bride's parents in Appomattox. The ceremony, attended only by members of the family, was performed by the Reverend Robert K. Redding, pastor of the Appomattox Court House Presbyterian church, before an altar of gladioli and cathedral candles with a background of laurel and other native greens.

During the ceremony violin solos, "Tis I Alone Can Tell," "Call Me Thine Own," and other selections were played by Ivy Honorable John Rolfe Horsley.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a cream wool dress with navy accessories including a toque and bouquet of peach gladioli and purple violets. She also carried a lace handkerchief that had belonged to her great grandmother.

Miss Nan Withers Throckmorton, cousin of the bride, of Richmond, and New York, was maid of honor, and Mrs. Jerry Allen Burke, Jr., of Richmond was matron of honor. Both wore dresses of pastel wool with flower toques and bouquets of iris and roses.

The bride attended the State Teachers College, Farmville, where she was a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority; she also attended the Ringling School of Art in Sarasota, Florida and later studied in New York.

She is descended from Colonial Virginia families being a direct descendent of Lawrence Washington, of Chotank, King George County, Virginia, Major John Stith of the American Revolution, who was on the staff of General Lafayette; and Pierre LeGrand, the French Huguenot who settled at Manikin Town in 1700. Her grandparents were the late Col. and Mrs. Richard Flood Burke and Mr. and Mrs. Aurelius William Abbitt, of Appomattox.

Lieutenant House is a graduate of Georgia Military College, receiving his advanced training in aviation and his commission at Barksdale Field, Shreveport, Louisiana. His father, the late Col. Ralph Hammond House, was a leading Sarasota attorney.

PRICE CONTROL LEGISLATION SIGNED BY THE PRESIDENT

President Roosevelt has signed the Price Control Bill which provides for a license system to enforce price regulations, calls for a single administrator and contains provisions to permit farm prices to rise as high as 110 per cent of parity. The President said, however, he may ask Congress to correct certain gaps in the bill, particularly the agricultural provisions. He said the prohibition against farm price ceilings at less than 110 per cent of parity is a direct threat to the cost of living, although the licensing, rent control and other provisions are useful weapons against inflation. The Department of Agriculture reported the average of farm product prices on January 15 was 102 percent of parity.

Dark Tobacco Markets Close February 26th

Many Appomattox Growers Have Received Excellent Prices

Virginia dark-fired tobacco markets will close for this season after sales of Thursday, February 26, it was announced yesterday. The markets throughout the belt, at Lynchburg, Bedford, Farmville and Blackstone, will all observe this closing date.

Most of the crop has already been marketed and sales are expected to be light during the remaining days of warehouse operation.

Prices have held firm throughout the season. The average price received by growers has hovered just above fifteen cents per pound. Most growers have been more than satisfied with prices received for their leaf. The only sad note of the marketing season has been the fact that growers didn't have large poundage to sell. However, growers have learned that excessive planting means a low selling price.

Yesterday growers sold 23,574 pounds of dark tobacco in Lynchburg at an average of $15.82 per hundredweight.

Many Appomattox growers have received high averages during the season. Among those receiving high averages yesterday were Winston Martin, R. S. Franklin, J. W. Gamer, D. M. Harris, and Lytton Harvey.
